

Carnegie Junior Fellows Program

Purpose	The purpose of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is to advance cooperation between nations and promote active international engagement by the United States . The program gives students the opportunity to gain valuable career knowledge and experience in support of that mission.
Award
Tenable	Award funds work at the Carnegie Endowment in Washington DC. Students assist senior associates with research and activities related to CEIP initiatives.
Number & Amount	8-10 students are offered positions annually. $2900 monthly salary and benefits (health & life insurance and vacation time).
Duration	One year. Fellowships begin on August 1.
Eligibility
Who	Any major. However, students need a strong interest in careers related to international affairs/foreign policy. Applicants are also expected to have completed substantial coursework in political science, economics, history, and/or area studies.
When	College seniors or individuals who have graduated within the past year. Students are NOT eligible if they have begun taking graduate coursework.
Selection Criteria	High academic ability/achievement. Demonstrated commitment to career goals (and good fit between goals and the program). Strong writing skills are crucial. Finalists interview in DC.
Campus Deadline	December 1. K-State can nominate two students to compete nationally.
Deadline	January 15
Application	Very basic application form. Statement of nomination from the University. Two letters of reference. Transcripts. Resume. Essay in response to one of several topical questions related to upcoming CEIP projects.
Contact	Jim Hohenbary is the Campus Representative for the Junior Fellowship. He can be reached at 112 Eisenhower or (785) 532-6904.
Other	Nominations are only accepted from approved schools. Kansas State was first approved as a nominating school for the Spring 2004 application cycle. Learn more about the Carnegie Endowment at www.carnegieendowment.org . Interested students might also check out the Scoville Peace & Security Fellowship. Internships are also offered at many other think tanks and nonprofits in the DC area. Several related examples are: the Center for Defense Information, the Center for Strategic and International Studies, and the Center for Nonproliferation Studies.