

Learning Outcomes for Graduate Students in Psychology

Theory and Content in Psychology – Students are expected to be able to integrate a broad understanding of psychological theories, principles and expertise in specific basic and applied domains.

Research Methodologies - Students are expected to be able to utilize research methodologies, data analyses and statistical interpretation relevant to their area of specialization.

Critical Thinking Skills – Students are expected to respect and utilize critical and creative thinking as it applies to the scientific approach to psychology.

Applications of Psychology – Students are expected to be able to understand and application of psychological theories, principles and methodologies to real world domains relevant to their areas of specialization.

Communication Skills – Students are expected to demonstrate effective written and oral communication skills.