

Student Learning Outcomes

Department of Foundations and Adult Education
Ed.D. Program in Adult and Continuing Education
November 2003 Draft.01

The Ed.D. in Adult and Continuing Education is designed to provide students with advanced preparation in and understanding of the field of adult and continuing education with special emphasis upon the development of skills, knowledge and attitudes which are related to excellence in practice. As such this degree is most often individually designed to meet specific student needs, goals and interests as applied to a variety of adult education settings. The following four outcomes are however common to all Ed.D. Programs in Adult Education.

Foundations of the Field of Adult and Continuing Education

The student will acquire a breadth of knowledge of the historical, philosophical, sociocultural and psychological basis for professional adult and continuing education practice.

Content of the Field of Adult and Continuing Education

The student will demonstrate an in depth knowledge of adult and continuing education best practices and research and be able to apply this knowledge to the improvement of educational opportunities for adult learners.

Practice of Adult and Continuing Education

The student will be able to interpret theoretically grounded and research-based information, adapt to changing situations, make complex decisions, solve problems, and evaluate actions in an adult and continuing education setting.

Research in Adult and Continuing Education

The student will demonstrate a depth of knowledge across the broad field of education and apply specific methods of applied inquiry to the field of adult and continuing education.