Unleashing your potential

When Jim Harbaugh, the head football coach of the San Francisco 49ers, was coaching the Stanford University football team his star player, Toby Gerhart, was asked how Stanford had become one of the top programs in the country.

Toby said that Coach Harbaugh was the main reason because he brings such enthusiasm and passion to the team, inspires people to want to play at Stanford and makes everyone better.

Jim's dad was the one who taught him the importance of enthusiasm.

Every day when his dad would take his brother John, who is also an NFL coach, his sister and Jim to school he would say to them,

“Attack this day with enthusiasm unknown to mankind.”

The Harbaugh children repeatedly heard this powerful and positive message and clearly their enthusiasm has become a huge part of their lives and careers.

Jim shared the same enthusiasm he did at Stanford with the 49'ers last year as a rookie NFL coach and transformed the team.

Research shows what we've always known to be true. Emotions are contagious. Studies conducted by HeartMath.org demonstrate that when you have a feeling in your heart it goes to every cell in the body and outward. Up to five to ten feet away people can sense feelings transmitted by your heart via electromagnetic signals.

This means that each day you are projecting enthusiasm and passion or apathy and indifference...and people can feel it.

That's why when you walk into a restaurant, an office, a hotel, a football locker room, a hospital or a school you can feel the energy and get a sense of the culture, the people and their enthusiasm and passion.

Enthusiasm and passion attract people to you and make them want to get on your bus. And while they are on your bus your enthusiasm infectiously makes them better.

When you live and work with enthusiasm you not only create a more exciting life and career, you also inspire your team and customers to be excited about working with you.

So today I want to encourage you to heed the advice of Mr. Harbaugh and decide to:

Attack this day with enthusiasm unknown to mankind. ~ Jon <http://www.jongordon.com>

Dr. Rice approved 4 new computers for our Resource Room in 120 Dykstra Hall. Facilities employees, who need to fill out their Health Quest forms, check their self-service, enter time in FAMIS and other work related tasks may use the computers in this room. They will also be used for training purposes. These computers are much faster and more dependable than what we had. Thank you Dr. Rice.

My Piece of the Picture...

Sharon Slack

Sharon has worked for the University for 35 years.

She is a Custodian at Vet Med on the day crew and works on the first floor area in Mosier Hall.

When asked what the three best things she likes about her job, she said, "I like meeting people, I like everybody at Vet Med, and I like custodial work."

As far as making changes to her department or organization, she states, "I'm happy the way things are now."

Sharon believes her position contributes to the success of our organization because of her work ethics and positive outlook. She said, "I try to keep my floor clean and I say hello to everyone."

Most people don't know Sharon likes to fish and she also likes Moped Trikes.

Thanks Sharon for all your hard work and for sharing your piece of the picture with us.

Congratulations!

Congratulations go out to Jon Lacy and Chris Holliman from Grounds West and Jim Ukena from the Carpenter Shop. They were selected for the K-State Classified Opportunity Fund Meritorious Service Award, because of their contributions to the Health and Safety Management Program. Facilities Central Mail Services (CMS) has a mission! CMS desires to provide Kansas State University with incredibly efficient, economical, and courteous mail service. Services provided by CMS include: picking up, sorting and distributing interdepartmental mail, metering postage onto USPS, UPS, and FedEx outgoing letters, parcels, and packages, and preparing hazardous material for shipment. Why does it make sense to use CMS? With over a century of mailing and shipping experience, here is what CMS can do for you:

- Liaison between USPS, UPS and FedEx, saving valuable time. CMS is the University's advocate with these vendors.
- Rate shop to achieve the most economical rate for the desired delivery objective.
- Ensure that departments are not overpaying or underpaying postage due to mail piece size, shape, and weight. Rates and regulations change annually, at a minimum. CMS employees remain current on these changes in order to process your mail accurately.
- Centralizing USPS, UPS, and FedEx mail and shipment processing through CMS enables us to capitalize on postage savings opportunities based on volumes, which benefits the entire university.
- Packages weighing more than one pound have to be presented to a USPS window... unless processed through CMS.
- Audit UPS and FedEx invoices for service failures, obtain postage refunds, and remit them to our campus customers.
- If any package/parcel is processed through CMS and is damaged, CMS handles the insurance claim process with USPS, UPS, and FedEx.
- Centralizing mail and shipment processing through CMS reduces the number of times USPS, UPS, and FedEx vehicles are on campus, optimizing the safety of pedestrian traffic and reducing the University's carbon footprint.

- Centralizing UPS and FedEx mailing and shipping through CMS reduces the number of individual accounts for the University; therefore, reducing the number of checks that have be cut in order to pay each of these individual bills. Each of these individual checks costs the University approximately $10.00 to prepare.
