CURRICULUM CHANGES

Department of English
Change:
FROM: Students may elect to earn a BA in the department through a course of study based on one of the following three tracks: literature, literature and creative writing, or literature with teaching certificate. For all three tracks, students must take at least 6 hours of American literature and 6 hours of British literature other than Shakespeare. Students also must achieve a C or better in all courses taken for major or minor credit.

TO: Students may elect to earn a BA in the department through a course of study based on one of the following three tracks: literature, literature and creative writing, or literature with teaching certificate. For all three tracks, students must take at least 6 hours of American literature, 6 hours of British literature other than Shakespeare, and 3 hours of a literature related to diversity in the U.S. or the world. Students also must achieve a C or better in all courses taken for major or minor credit.

RATIONALE: Both Kansas State University and the English Department have stated commitments to diversity. The English Department proposes to add a diversity overlay to our current requirements in order to increase our ability to fulfill our mission statements, to enhance our ability to recruit an increasingly diverse student population, and to fulfill the University’s diversity SLO.

RATIONALE: In a separate action currently before faculty senate, MC 195 Information Gathering is being dropped from our curriculum, and another class, MC 316, is being modified in title and description. The proposed action on this form represents the faculty’s desire to substitute MC 195 with MC 316 as a core requirement for Print and Broadcast Journalism majors.

An earlier action in 2006, which creates undergraduate versions of some classes that were once only listed at the 700 level, is forcing a change in the bottom “choose from” option. MC 710 History of Journalism and MC 720 Ethics in Mass Communication were formerly part of that option, and now, those classes are being replaced with MC 564 and MC 573.

MUSIC 706 Song Literature

RATIONALE: In the Bachelor of Music/vocal performance degree we are proposing to decrease the number of credits for Music 455, UD Performance/Voice, from 14 to 13 credits, and add Music 491, Vocal Pedagogy, for 2 credits. This will increase the total number of credits in the curriculum by 1, but the total still falls within the limits stated in the catalog – 129-134 credits for the degree. The addition of Vocal Pedagogy will strengthen our curriculum, making it more consistent with similar curricula at other colleges and universities.

B. General Education –

Appendix F, Section A. Cheating: Plagiarism.

1. Definition of Plagiarism.

Plagiarism is taking credit for someone else’s ideas, work, or words. In a university setting, it means turning in academic, scholarly, or literary work in which you either claim or imply the material to be your own, when that is not the case. Webster’s New Collegiate Dictionary, eleventh edition, defines plagiarism simply: “to steal and pass off the ideas or words of another as one’s own without crediting the source” (2003).

2. Avoidance of Plagiarism.

In practical terms, plagiarism could include:

- Buying a term paper, or copying another person’s paper, even if she or he gives you permission.
- Cutting and pasting information from the Internet into your own paper without properly identifying it as a quotation and properly attributing the source.
- Using someone else’s original concept and presenting it as if it is your own original creativity, without acknowledging the source of the idea.

While some acts of plagiarism are obvious attempts to deceive, like buying a term paper, others result from sloppy scholarship or failure to follow proper format for crediting sources. For example:

- If you copy directly from another source and acknowledge it in your bibliography or list of works cited, yet fail to put it in quotation marks, this is plagiarism. The reason is because, although you have indicated that the idea is someone else’s, the lack of quotation marks implies that the words are your own.
- Paraphrasing is summarizing a source so that you have re-written the material in your own words but maintained the original author’s ideas. When you paraphrase, you do not need to put the words in quotation marks, but you do need to properly attribute the original source. Paraphrasing does not mean simply changing one or two words, or leaving out a sentence, while the rest remains the same. Even if you identify the original author, but have used faulty paraphrasing that retains too much of the original, the result is inadvertent plagiarism.
- If you use another researcher’s specific methodology, you should acknowledge doing so. While some research protocols are widespread and general enough to need no citation, if the protocol, analysis, or technique can be attributed to specific publication it should be cited.

Different departments and disciplines may have specific guidelines and standards for how to properly acknowledge and document sources. For example, some departments will require students to use a certain citation format: MLA or APA. If instructors or departments have specific requirements concerning citation or paraphrasing, it is their responsibility to make these requirements clear to the students. If students have any question about how to properly attribute work, it is their responsibility to ask the instructor. Departments that encourage collaborative learning and scholarship should make clear to students what constitutes fair academic collaboration, and what constitutes academic dishonesty.

4. Academic Community.

The ethical standards outlined above apply throughout the academic community. These guidelines apply to faculty and research assistants in their possible use of students’ and colleagues’ research and ideas, as well as to students’ use either of source materials and authorities or of other students’ ideas and work.
