Undergraduate Course and Curriculum changes

School of Family Studies and Human Services

ADD:

FSHS 322, Transition to Parenthood

Credits: 3

This course is an empirically based evaluation of The Transition to Parenthood from the onset of pregnancy to three years after the child’s birth.

When Offered: Spring

Pre-Requisite: No

K-State 8 TAG: Social Sciences

Rationale: This course has been offered on the Manhattan and Salina campuses as a FSHS 300: Problems in Family Studies & Human Services course. This course was first offered as an intersession course and has since been adapted to be offered as a semester-long course. This proved to be very effective. We would like to now offer this course on the K-State Salina campus as an elective for FSHS students who need professional electives and all other K-State Salina students who can use this course as a social science elective.

Impact: None

Effective Date: Spring 2013

Non-Expedited UNDERGRADUATE Curriculum Change Proposals

Department of Apparel, Textiles and Interior Design

Rationale: To allow students to have more options to complete pre-requisite course to continue on to graduate and professional schools. Athletic Training students are required to write medical reports and reviews of research in all of their professional phase course work. Decrease total hours required to 120 credit hours to meet college and Board of Regents requirements.

Rationale: ①. The name change to “Nutrition and Health” reflects a greater emphasis on health courses under the professional studies section. An increasing number of students in this major go on to post-baccalaureate schools in the health profession. ②. Grades of “C or higher” will be required for all courses in this curriculum except for those in the unrestricted electives category. The higher grade requirements increase the academic rigor of this curriculum, and enable students to be more academically competitive for professional schools or for graduate schools. ③. ANTH 200 or 204 has been moved to the professional studies section. ④. Content of KIN 360 (8) Anatomy and Physiology is adequate for students in this major. ⑤. HN 110 provides an overview of the five core disciplines (epidemiology, biostatistics, environmental health, social and behavioral health, and health policy and management), and information about career options in public health.⑥. GNHE 210 is required in the new College of Human Ecology core degree requirements as Additional Integrative Studies (expedited and approved by the CHE Academic Affairs Committee 2.23.12). This course replaces the previous core requirement of FSHS 350 or GNHE 310.⑦. KIN 220 has been added as a professional requirement because of the importance of physical activity in health.⑧. These courses give students more choice selecting other disciplines related to health, and are commonly required for entrance into professional schools.⑨. The Kansas Board of Regents has approved the reduction of credit hours for a B.S. degree to 120 hrs. The number of unrestricted electives has been modified to reflect the balance of hours needed to complete the degree.

Impact (i.e. if this impacts another unit): College of Arts and Sciences: American Ethnic Studies; Sociology, Anthropology and Social Work; Division of Biology, Kinesiology; and Psychology.

Support and approval statements have been received from the impacted departments.

NON-EXPEDITED COURSE PROPOSALS Courses Numbered 000-599

Modern Languages

ADD: GRMN 528 – Introductory Topics in German Language and Linguistics. (3) I, II. Introduction to topics in German Linguistics, with special emphasis on the connection between language structure and use or language structures and learning. Courses are repeatable with change of subject matter. Pr.: GRMN 223. Other Requirements: GRMN 523 or 527 or 526 should be taken before GRMN 528 or concurrently with GRMN 528.
K-State 8: Global Issues and Perspectives

RATIONALE: Courses in Linguistics and Applied Linguistics have increased since new faculty, with specialization in Linguistics, were hired in Modern Languages in Fall 2007, on the graduate and undergraduate levels. These new hires and new offerings responded to an increased interest in Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, and especially in linguistic training for language-teachers-in-training (BA and MA levels). New courses in linguistics were in the past years offered as special topics under existing course numbers. However, since these language/linguistics courses are distinct in content, skills, and research approach from literature/culture courses and are now offered on a regular basis (at least one 700-level course per year in German and growing), there is a need to create separate course numbers for them. In addition to creating a separate number on the 700-level (s. separate Add request), a dedicated course number on the 500-level should be created, in order to – to allow faculty to offer courses that prepare students systematically for 700-level topics courses in linguistics, - allow minors (who typically do not reach the 700-level) to enroll in at least one course that focuses on linguistics and thus broaden the scope of their minor.

Music, Theatre, and Dance

FROM: MUSIC 210 – Music Theory I. (3) I, II. Music Theory 1 is an introduction to the basic language of music; scales, triads and seventh chords, and all simple intervals. Written and aural skills reinforce concepts of melody, rhythm, and harmony. Pr.: Tested knowledge of basic music reading and aural skills. K-State 8: ~~None~~.

TO: MUSIC 210 – Music Theory I. (3) I, II. Music Theory 1 is an introduction to the basic language of music; scales, triads and seventh chords, and all simple intervals. Written and aural skills reinforce concepts of melody, rhythm, and harmony. Pr.: Tested knowledge of basic music reading and aural skills. K-State 8: Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding RATIONALE: When the courses in the music program were originally tagged for K-State 8, Music Theory I was somehow skipped. All of the other Music Theory classes (2-4) and Music Fundamentals (non-major Music Theory), Music Listening Lab, History of Rock & Roll, as well as all of the Aural Skills classes and most other music classes are tagged for “Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding”. Theory 1 is the beginning course of a four-semester sequence of Music Theory. It makes sense that all Theory classes should have the same K-State 8 tag.

Physics

FROM: PHYS 191 – Descriptive Astronomy. (3) II. ~~A qualitative study of the sun and planets, stars and galaxies; a survey of what is known about the universe and how it is known. 3 lecture hours per week.~~

TO: PHYS 191 – Descriptive Astronomy. (3) II. A qualitative study of the earth, sun, planets, stars, galaxies and the universe; a survey of what is known about the universe and how we know it. 2 lecture hours and 2 lab hours per week.

RATIONALE: We request that this PHYS 191 be changed from three lectures per week to two lectures per week plus one two-hour lab per week. This change is motivated by the desire to get more hands-on activities for the student. With such activities, the students will develop a better appreciation and understanding for the methods of science, how we know what we know, which is very important in our modern world. Furthermore, this class with a lab will allow it to satisfy the lab-based science requirement that many majors require, hence give it a pragmatic appeal.

IMPACT: The addition of the lab component will allow it to satisfy the lab-based science requirement that many majors require.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2013

Philosophy

FROM: PHILO 297 – Honors Introduction to the Humanities I. (3) I. Study of selected major works of history, literature, and philosophy which have been of central importance in the Western cultural tradition. Considerable emphasis is placed on classroom discussion and writing interpretive essays. Pr.: Consent of instructor.
K-State 8: ~~None.~~

TO: PHILO 297 - – Honors Introduction to the Humanities I. (3) I. Study of selected major works of history, literature, and philosophy which have been of central importance in the Western cultural tradition. Considerable emphasis is placed on classroom discussion and writing interpretive essays. Pr.: Consent of instructor.
K-State 8: Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding; Global Issues and Perspectives

RATIONALE: K-State 8 values added to match cross-listed courses. ENGL 297, HIST 297, and MLANG 297.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2013

ADD: PHILO 303 – Writing Philosophy. (3) I. Introduction to philosophical composition to develop skills necessary to succinctly explicate single arguments, dialectics relating several arguments, and critical analyses of arguments. Philosophical topics covered vary, but typically are related to understanding ourselves and our moral practices. K-State 8: Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding.

RATIONALE: As our curriculum is currently structured, many of our majors are developing critical writing skills only in upper division classes. The difficulty of mastering the skills is there compounded by the difficulty of the material about which they are writing. This course, required in our newly restructured curriculum, should enable students to develop the necessary technical skills working with relatively simple topics, thereby easing their path through the major and improving retention.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2014

FROM: PHILO 305 – ~~Philosophical Methods and Perspectives. (3) II. Special knowledge, methods and skills needed to do philosophical research. Conceptual analysis, argument strategy, definitional strategy, thought experiments, counter-examples, applied to the mechanics of paper writing in philosophy and philosophical discussion. Pr.: One course in philosophy, major standing, or consent of instructor. K-State 8: None.~~

TO: PHILO 305 – Reasons, Decisions and Society. (3) II. Introduction to decision and social choice theory emphasizing theories of utility, equilibria, and aggregation. Pr.: One course in philosophy, or major standing. K-State 8: Ethical Reasoning and Responsibility.

RATIONALE: The focus of this course has shifted to decision theory to the exclusion of other elements of philosophical method (treated now in other courses), in response to the demands upper division courses place on our majors. Hence, the new name and course description are undertaken to increase clarity and accuracy of the course description.

ADD: PHILO 335 – Introduction to Social and Political Philosophy. (3) I. Introduction to modern social and political philosophy, examining questions about central political values, such as equal citizenship, property rights, distributive justice, fairness, and democratic social and political institutions. Pr.: One course in philosophy or major standing. K-State 8: Ethical Reasoning and Responsibility.

RATIONALE: Philo 335 is a new course devoted to social and political philosophy. Core elements were previously covered in Philo 330, but in insufficient breadth. Our new curriculum splits what was Philo 330 Moral and Political Philosophy into two courses, Philo 330 Moral Philosophy and Philo 335 Social and Political Philosophy, which will afford students a broader and deeper introduction to political philosophy, better preparing them for upper division course work.

IMPACT: None

EFFECTIVE DATE: Fall 2013

ADD: PHILO 345 – Worlds, Things and Properties. (3) II. Introduction to metaphysics, surveying the historical development of different metaphysical theories, including alternative conceptions of causation and of identity through time, and alternative theories about the relationship between physical and non-physical (e.g. mental) properties. Pr.: One course in philosophy or major standing.

RATIONALE: Our new curriculum splits the introductory discussions of topics in metaphysics and epistemology, currently conducted in Philo 340 Theories of Knowledge and Reality, into two courses. PHILO 345 Worlds, Things and Properties will treat the somewhat expanded, core topics in metaphysics.

IMPACT: None

RATIONALE: To better enable majors to conduct undergraduate research in upper division classes, we propose reorganizing our major. The central features of this re-organization are these: 1) a more comprehensive set of introductory skills classes. Ensuring that majors develop the necessary writing and formal analytic skills before they begin taking upper division classes; 2) a broader set of core content courses, insuring that students have the necessary breadth of background to situate current philosophic debates both conceptually and historically; while 3) retaining flexibility at the upper level for students to devote their energies to domains and topics most relevant to their interests and post-graduate plans. We expect that the new, more comprehensive set of core courses will enable instructors to help students engage core issues at a level of sophistication appropriate to potential publication of results. In particular, the new core will enable our formally inclined students to engage value-oriented topics in epistemology, metaphysics and philosophy of science.
