

ENGAGING COMMUNITY

Through Service-learning

April 19, 2007

Kansas State Union, Flint Hills Room

2 - 4:30 PM

Please join us to discuss the benefits of taking research and learning outside of the classroom or laboratory. This symposium is designed to foster discourse among university faculty and extension educators impacting the future engagement of Kansas communities and beyond.

Participants will also learn of funding opportunities on campus to support your engagement and service-learning endeavors.

Coffee and refreshments will be available. Everyone is welcome

AGENDA

2:00 — Welcome	William Hargrove	KCARE
2:10 — Keynote Address	Joseph Underhill	Augsburg College Minneapolis MN
3:00 — Break and Networking
3:30 — Funding Opportunities	David Procter	Center for Engagement and Community Development
	Christopher Lavergne	Kansas WaterLINK
4:00 — Profiles of Engagement	Nancy Muturi	A.Q. Miller School of Journalism & Mass Communications
	Alok Bhandari	College of Engineering

Community Engagement is a type of public participation that involves people outside of the campus in problem-solving or decision-making processes. It is a multi-faceted, ongoing process that relies on scientific-based research, public education and outreach.

Service-learning is a teaching and learning strategy that integrates meaningful community service with instruction and reflection to enrich the learning experience, teach civic responsibility and strengthen communities.

Sponsored by the Center for Engagement and Community Development, Kansas Center for Agricultural Resources and the Environment (KCARE), and Kansas Campus Compact.

PLEASE POST