Tips for Eating Out:

- Call the restaurant ahead of time to make sure they are able to accommodate your needs.
- Let your server know about your allergy and ask to talk to a manager to be sure your needs are clearly understood, (especially important in ethnic restaurants where English may be a second language.)
- Educate yourself on what you are able to eat and not able to eat.
- Remember not all dishes can be converted to gluten-free, so be flexible with your entrée choices.

Gluten sensitivity can vary from person to person. What one person is able to handle may make another person sick. Don't trust everything you find online to be factual. Talk to your doctor and/or a registered dietitian if you have any concerns about your individual tolerances.
