

"THE MISSION of Kansas State University specifically states that our purpose is to "develop a highly skilled and educated citizenry necessary to advance the well-being of Kansas, the nation and the international community." The companies who recruit and hire our students are international in their scope, and we must prepare our students to be successful employees in the global marketplace. We have a responsibility to connect our faculty, staff and students with our international colleagues and to share our knowledge with and learn from them. As a land-grant university, we are committed to outreach and service and this extends to interactions with our international partners.

The Friends of International Programs is a very important organization whose members contribute significantly to our initiatives. They provide encouragement and support along with their expertise, time, and resources, all of which allows us to achieve a far greater level of success. We are indebted to their efforts, and we would encourage you to consider joining with us as we work together. I look forward to seeing you at some of the international activities sponsored by the Friends of International Programs during this next year."

FRIENDS OF INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY

Connecting a global community to support excellence in international endeavors and improving international understanding.

FRIENDS OF INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS AT KANSAS STATE

The Friends of International Programs at Kansas State University is a group of interested individuals dedicated to supporting the activities of the Office of International Programs by fundraising for public and individual support.

The Friends organization connects K-State alumni, faculty, staff, students and community members in order to create a global community committed to excellence in all international endeavors to improve international understanding.

OUR GOALS

- Host international visitors, including dignitaries, educators and guests of the university. Provide temporary housing for international students waiting to move into permanent accommodations. Host international students during university and holiday breaks.
- Involve the community in the university by organizing and publicizing events on campus that involve international themes. Such events may include lectures, cultural celebrations and performances.

- Sponsor events, both in the United States and abroad, involving international alumni and study abroad alumni. Such events could include receptions, dinners, reunions, activities and tours.
- Raise funds to support scholarships for K-State study abroad students and international students enrolled at K-State.
- Hold fundraising events such as auctions and special events. The purpose of these events would be to raise money to support the facilities of the university's international programs.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership is open to any individual, business or group that is interested in the purposes of the Friends of International Programs.

Members may contribute monetarily or through in-kind goods or services. The membership year is from July 1 through June 30.
