

Women's Studies Department, KSU

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Upon completion of the Women's Studies major, students will be able to:

1. analyze the ways in which identity, culture, and society are structured by intersections of social categories (such as gender, race, class, sexuality, ability, global location, coloniality)
2. create and articulate verbal and written ideas and arguments related to Women's Studies research and scholarship
3. demonstrate knowledge of historical and contemporary social relations, hierarchies of power, resistances, and movements
4. understand and apply feminist and related theories, methodologies, and methods
5. demonstrate ability to assess needs, develop (or design), and implement plans related to women's needs and goals

approved by the full Women's Studies Faculty, Sept 12, 2011