Global Campus
Distance education

Overview
Kansas State University Global Campus offers high-quality courses and award-winning degree programs for adults seeking to advance their careers or change their professions. Using new and innovative technologies, K-State has extended its quality learning environment far beyond the university’s physical boundaries and now serves students in all 50 states and 16 countries.

With degree programs and credit courses offered online, students who don’t live near Manhattan can learn from the same faculty members who teach on campus.

K-State Global Campus provides you the opportunity to pursue goals without leaving a job or family. You’ll need dedication, self-direction and perseverance to be successful.

By pursuing your academic goals through K-State Global Campus, you can expect:

- University credit courses from an accredited institution.
- A variety of choices in degrees, certificates and courses.
- Professional development programs.
- Education in a format and time frame that fits your schedule.
- Student services specifically designed to assist students at a distance.
- More than 750 classes offered each year.
- K-State library services through the library system.
- A technical support help desk.

Activities

Virtual Open House

The Virtual Open House brings the experience of the K-State on-campus open house to distance students who cannot attend the on-campus event. The Virtual Open House provides videos, a campus photo tour, an interactive campus map, games and free K-State downloads. Links to other communications specifically for distance students are also provided. Visit the Virtual Open House at global.k-state.edu/openhouse.

Virtual commencement

Graduation is a time to celebrate, and a virtual commencement website honors K-State graduates who have studied at a distance. If distance students are not able to travel to the K-State campus in Manhattan to celebrate in person, the virtual commencement honors them and lets them celebrate accomplishments with friends and family.

Social media for K-State distance students

K-State distance students can stay connected to the university through a variety of social media avenues:

- Facebook: K-State Global Campus
- Twitter: KStateGlobal
- Linkedin

Social media allows K-State distance students, alumni, faculty and staff to receive announcements and updates from the university and to share information with each other.

National Distance Learning Week

Sponsored by the United States Distance Learning Association, or USDLA, National Distance Learning Week helps increase awareness and appreciation for distance learning and how it helps people reach their educational goals. K-State Global Campus collaborates with campus and community partners to participate in this annual event by offering online and walk-in activities for distance education students and faculty.
