Unleashing your potential

11 WAYS TO BUILD TRUST

In my book Soup I discussed how trust is one of the essential ingredients to build a great relationship, winning team and culture of greatness. Without trust you can't have engaged relationships and without engaged relationships you won't be a successful leader, manager, sales person, team member, principal, teacher, nurse, coach, etc.

In this spirit I wanted to share some thoughts about how we can build the trust that is essential for great relationships. Many of the suggestions you already know. Many ideas I share are common sense. However, I've found that so often amidst the chaos of life and work we forget the simple and powerful truths that matter most. So here are 11 thoughts about trust. Feel free to share these simple reminders with your leaders, colleagues and team.

1. Say what you are going to do and then do what you say!
2. Communicate, communicate, and communicate. Frequent, honest communication builds trust. Poor communication is one of the key reasons marriages and work relationships fall apart.
3. Trust is built one day, one interaction at a time, and yet it can be lost in a moment because of one poor decision. Make the right decision.

4. Value long term relationships more than short term success.

5. Sell without selling out. Focus more on your core principles and customer loyalty than short term commissions and profits.

6. Trust generates commitment; commitment fosters teamwork; and teamwork delivers results. When people trust their team members they not only work harder, but they work harder for the good of the team.

7. Be honest! My mother always told me to tell the truth. She would say, "If you lie to me then we can't be a strong family. So don't ever lie to me even if the news isn't good."

8. Become a coach. Coach your customers. Coach your team at work. Guide people, help them be better and you will earn their trust.

9. Show people you care about them. When people know you care about their interests as much as your own they will trust you. If they know you are out for yourself, their internal alarm sounds and they will say to themselves "watch out for that person."

10. Always do the right thing. We trust those who live, walk and work with integrity.

11. When you don't do the right thing, admit it. Be transparent, authentic and willing to share your mistakes and faults. When you are vulnerable and have nothing to hide you radiate trust. By Jon Gordon. <http://www.jongordon.com>

Facilities Annual OSHA Safety Training was held September 20, 2011. It was a great success. Sandy will be presenting this training to the Salina Campus on the 29th and a make-up session at a later date. Due to time constraints some were unable to complete the “hands on” portion of the fire extinguisher training. Larry Zentz will be providing this service again during Fire Prevention Week, in Bosco Plaza, October 11th and 12th between 10:00 am and 3:00 pm. You are invited to participate during this time frame.

My Piece of the Picture...

Galen Hageman has worked for Facilities for 29 years. He is presently supervisor of the Carpenter and Roof shops.

He assigns work orders, contacts departments, schedules projects, orders materials and checks projects. He also oversees remodel projects on campus and roof inspection on all buildings here on campus.

The 3 things he likes best about his job, Galen states:

1. "Keeping busy and productive gives me satisfaction."
2. "I enjoy working with the workers in the shop on projects around campus when needed. They are the best crew to work for and with."
3. "Working with the rest of the facility staff and students at K-State to keep the campus maintained and productive for working and learning."

If he were given the opportunity to implement a "Positive Change" to his department or organization, he states, "In these days of severe budget cuts and no pay increases, I find it more difficult to keep workers motivated. I think giving workers benefits that wouldn't cost the university any extra money would be helpful. This could be free admission to athletic events, McCain events, free parking on campus, Call Hall ice cream and others. It would be a morale booster to have workers recognized for all their efforts and hard work in these tough times that we are all dealing with."

Galen believes his position contributes to the success of our organization, “As a Facilities Supervisor, I hire, train and expect the workers to do the best job possible. We know as a department what we do reflects how people work and learn here at KSU. We realize we are a part of what make K-State proud. We work together to make the university one of the best in the United States.”

Most folks don’t know that: “I live out in the country and enjoy the outdoors. We are able to see lots of the greatest Kansas sunrises and sunsets. For the last seven years I have exercised almost every day, I run 2 miles every day and lift weights 4 times a week for health reasons. I love the outdoors and spending time with my wife and sons. We enjoy bike rides, bonfires, horseshoes, hiking, working on the land we own, barbeques, watching my son’s baseball games and snow skiing at Colorado. I am also a member of KSU, Riley County Extension Master Gardener program.” Thanks, Galen, for sharing your piece of the Facilities puzzle with us.

Caught in the Act of Doing Good!

Kudos to Burt Person

Rosanna Vail from room 58 at College Court wrote these kind words about Burt, “My office has had so many leaks and other problems, and Burt has always gone the extra mile to help me clean up and get my office back in working order.

I am grateful for his positive attitude, and it has actually helped me get through the awful leak situations here. In the past five years, since I've been here in College Court, Burt has the best attitude and has done the best job. I am really sad to see him reassigned to another building.

Thank you, Burt, for the excellent work ethics and the great service you give and thank you, Rosanna, for bringing this to our attention.

Major Changes Coming to Health Insurance.

Jim Chacon, administrative officer in payroll, is encouraging all Facilities employees to attend the upcoming K-State Benefits Expo to be held at the Union on October 6th. There will be some major changes coming that may affect the cost of insurance in future years.

October 1st through the 31st is when employees can make changes to their health insurance.

Human Resources will present 2 information sessions to inform employees of the changes in insurance for 2012. They will also be discussing how these changes will affect health insurance for 2013.

On October 6th, the first session will be at 9:15 am in Forum Hall. The second session will be at 3:00 pm in Forum Hall.

There will also be booths set up in the Ballroom from 9:00 to 3:00. In addition there will be financial and retirement planning sessions.

Yellow flyers were sent out from Human Resources this week to all employees.
