IMPACT: Over the past year, individuals from the College of Education (content faculty and advisors) and Modern Languages (department chair, representatives from impacted languages and advisors) have been meeting semi-regularly to discuss our programs and determine how to collaboratively work together to improve them. Modern Language faculty have played an integral part in reviewing the program and working to identify courses that offer a rigorous, well-rounded, and complete content base for the program. The Department Head of Modern Languages was emailed January 2016 with this Appendix to verify that the program changes we discussed were accurately represented; which he confirmed. These program changes also were discussed during a Modern Language Departmental faculty meeting.

RATIONALE: To improve student pass rates on the Praxis exam and to better and more quickly increase student's language proficiency, the program requirements have been reviewed and re-evaluated to increase the rigor and require higher levels of proficiency to complete coursework. Over the past few semesters, the Modern Language Department has been working with course numbers, descriptions, and offerings; they are now at a relatively stable place across languages. Therefore, we have been working with them to align program requirements to meet our student's needs of advanced language proficiency, which happens to also more closely mirror the requirements requisite to earn a language major as well.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Fall 2016

Graduate Course and Curriculum changes (5-3-16)

Non-Expedited Course Addition

Department of Diagnostic Medicine / Pathobiology

ADD: DMP 846. Foundations of Biosecurity. (3) I. The course examines the biosecurity policies and procedures required in high and maximum-containment research facilities. It provides a historical perspective of biosecurity, establishes definitions and explores concepts related to personnel, governmental and contemporary biosecurity topics. Agro-security topics are highlighted providing a perspective on risk and threat assessment to public health and institutional, local, regional, national and global threats.

RATIONALE: The goal of this course is to foster a deep understanding of the issues and regulatory requirements that dictate biosecurity practices required in high-containment research facilities.

This course provides students with a foundational understanding of modern biosecurity rationales, processes and procedures required in high and maximum-containment research facilities. This in-depth understanding will provide future principal investigators, research team members, and biosafety professionals with a competitive advantage as they apply for faculty positions or research and administrative positions with high and maximum-containment research facilities such as NBAF or biotechnical companies in the animal health corridor.

Impact (i.e. if this impacts another college/unit): NONE

FROM: PLPTH 612. ~~Genomics Applications. (3) Spring. An introduction to applications of genomics technologies to the analysis of genomes. Three hours lecture a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 450 or ASI 500. Recommended prerequisite: BIOCH 521.~~

TO: PLPTH 812 Introduction to Integrative Genome Analysis. (3) Fall, Even. An introduction to applications of genomics technologies, methods and approaches and their integration to the study of genome biology. Three lectures a week. Recommended prerequisite: BIOL 450 or ASI 500 and a 700 level statistics course.

RATIONALE: PLPTH 612 is part of the Applied Genomics and Biotechnology minor. Due to low enrollment and completion rates the minor is being discontinued. PLPTH 612 will be re-numbered to PLPTH 812 and revised to meet the needs of graduate students. Graduate student enrollment of PLPTH 612 was usually 60-70%. Feedback from many graduate students indicated that they would prefer to have more advanced material covered.

IMPACT: The Animal Sciences and Industry (B.S.) - Bioscience/Biotechnology option and the Biology and Microbiology BS options in Biology are the only university programs that list PLPTH 612 as an elective course. The Division of Biology and the Departments of Statistics, Agronomy and Animal Sciences and Industry were all contacted and they support the change. No additional impact.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Fall 2016

FROM: PLPTH 613 ~~Bioinformatics Applications. (2) Spring. Analysis of genetic and genomic data, focusing on practical use of public computational resources. Prerequisite: PLPTH 612 or concurrent enrollment. One hour lecture and two hours lab per week.~~

TO: PLPTH 813 Bioinformatics Applications. (3) Spring, Odd. This course will cover the basic principles of regular bioinformatics applications and emphasize the practice of bioinformatics in biological research. The course will introduce the use of computation skills in data analysis focused on the application of bioinformatics in next-generation sequencing (NGS). The goal of this course is to help students be prepared for the next-generation biological research that often generates large data and requires researchers to have the capability in data management and data mining. Two hour lecture and two hours lab per week. Recommended prerequisite: BIOL 450 or ASI 500 and a 700 level statistics course

RATIONALE: PLPTH 613 is an elective for the Applied Genomics & Biotechnology minor. Due to low enrollment and completion rates, the minor is being discontinued. PLPTH 613 will be re-numbered to PLPTH 813 and revised to meet the needs of graduate students.

IMPACT: The Biology and Microbiology options in Biology are the only university programs that lists PLPTH 613 as an elective course. The department of Biology (Ruth Welti) was notified of the change on 11-18-15 and approval was given. The Statistics Department was notified and approval was given.

Non-Expedited Course Drop

DROP: PLPTH 611. Agricultural Biotechnology Laboratory. (2) Fall. Laboratory course designed to provide practical applications of recombinant and genomic techniques related to agricultural biotechnology. Typical techniques include genetic analysis, bioinformatics basics, DNA isolation and molecular analysis, PCR applications, southern-and northern-blot analysis, linkage mapping genetic and disease ID through DNA-based approaches, ELISA assays, gene manipulation, eukaryotic transformation techniques. Four hours lab per week. Prerequisite: PLPTH 610/AGRON 610 or concurrent enrollment.

RATIONALE: PLPTH 611 is part of the Applied Genomics and Biotechnology minor. Due to low enrollment and completion rates the minor is being discontinued. As part of this process, PLPTH 611 will be dropped.

IMPACT: The Animal Sciences and Industry (B.S.) - Bioscience/Biotechnology option and the Biology and Microbiology BS options in Biology are the only university programs that list PLPTH 611 as an elective course. The Division of Biology (Ruth Welti) was contacted about the program change on 11-18-15 and they were okay with the proposed change. Thus, students have a large selection of classes to choose from each year.

RATIONALE: For some time, the Women's Studies department at Kansas State University has included courses that study gender (i.e. Polsci 606: Gender and Politics) and sexuality in addition to women, and recently added an undergraduate minor in Queer Studies. Additional changes, like the addition of a new course: Womst 350: Gender in American Film, augments this expansion of scope. Thus, the change in department name to Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies reflects changes in the curricular offerings in the department, as well as nationwide trends in the discipline. At other universities, departments have renamed themselves as we are doing. For example, the department at the University of Iowa is called Gender, Women's and Sexuality Studies; at University of Minnesota it is Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies.

Some courses, though not all of them, are also being renamed. The name of the major, minor, and graduate certificate in Women's Studies will change to Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies, while the existing minor in Queer Studies will remain unchanged.

This proposed name change is on the Board of Regents Agenda for March.

IMPACT: Deans of all colleges were notified of the name change proposal on February 3rd. Dean Shanklin and Dean Goetsch have communicated their support. No other deans have responded.
