International Grains Program building; Board Room, Kimball Ave.

Absent: Kearns, Maddy, McKinney, Oberst, Rowlett, Stokes, Wang, Yahnke

1. Tom Herald, Chair, called the meeting to order at 3:40 p.m.
2. The September 7, 2006 minutes stood approved as modified.
3. Tour of IGP (International Grains Program) building and BIVAP
John Howard, Director of Grain Science and Industry, showed the committee a brief video about the IGP building and what function it serves, not only for the University community, but for the world. The building is designed to educate foreign business leaders and government officials about U.S. grains and oilseeds through technical-training and assistance programs in storage and handling, milling, marketing, and processing. For more information on the building you can visit: www.ksu.edu/igp. Behnke then gave the committee a tour of the BIVAP building just north of the IGP building. It has more than 15,000 sq ft of research space allocated to extrusion research, biomass conversion research, and fermentation and pre-fermentation processing research. Both the IGP and BIVAP buildings have conference rooms available for client use.
4. Announcements
 - City/University Projects – Herald passed out a summary of city/university project requests. He asked that any suggestions for future projects be emailed to him. Condia felt it would be a good idea to have a different texture on the road prior to student crosswalks to indicate to a driver the need to slow down. Behnke commented that it would be nice to have some type of a water structure on campus, not necessarily anything large, but something attractive for the University.
 - Herald reminded the committee that Kelli Cox, Chair of the Advisory Committee on Campus Development and Planning, will be at the October 19 meeting. Mayor Snead will be at the November 16 meeting, which will be at 2:30 p.m.
5. Agenda items for next meeting
6. For the good of the university
Gormely would like to have information from the past few years on such things as the number of students who have applied to Kansas State and the number who have enrolled, and so on. Herald suggested contacting the Registrar's office. Shubert offered to do some research on this and get back to the committee.
7. The meeting was adjourned at 5:00 p.m.
