RESIDENTIAL CAT COMMUNITIES

	PSYCH 110 General Psychology
	ENGL 220 Fiction into Film
	DAS 101 Fandom and Film Studies
	Residence Halls: Ford, Haymaker, Moore, West

Do you love movies, comics, novels, anime, video games, or any kind of story? We'll explore how powerful narratives shape our values, challenge our perspectives, and inspire us to create positive change. Beyond analyzing these, we'll dive into how they foster hope, resilience, and a sense of belonging, reminding us that no matter the odds, we all have the power to make a difference. Together, we'll build a community where you'll build meaningful connections, grow as a learner, and develop the media literacy, critical thinking, and creative skills that will serve you throughout college and your future career. Join in and let the adventure begin!

	BIOL 198 Principles of Biology
	GWSS 105 Intro to Gender, Women, & Sexuality Studies
	DAS 195 Medicine, Science, & Society
	Residence Halls: Ford, Haymaker, Moore, West

What does it take to be a good healthcare provider? This CAT community will help you develop your critical analysis and reasoning skills while exploring public health concepts related to health disparities.

	PSYCH 110 General Psychology
	COMM 106 Public Speaking I
	DAS 195 Psychology of Social Media
	Residence Halls: Goodnow, Marlatt, Wefald

Social media is a powerful medium in our world through which we acquire and share information, share our opinions and perspectives, and connect with others. Social media can be wonderful, uplifting, and conveniently accessible. Social media also can be overwhelming, depressing, and inescapable. This class will discuss what social media is, the advantages and disadvantages it brings, and how we can get the most out of social media for our personal and professional lives.
