LEAD502-ZA Class # 17973 - Fall 2018
Strengths-Based Leadership Development

LEAD 502 Strengths-Based Leadership Development will build upon the knowledge gained in the initial StrengthsQuest® assessment offered to all incoming Kansas State University students. Designed to provide a more formalized and extensive training, this course will benefit students who want to move beyond strengths identification and focus on strengths development. Students transitioning from academia to the workplace will find the course particularly timely and beneficial.

Students will develop a deep understanding of:
• their own 34 strengths
• the research and functional foundations of strengths
• how to use strengths-based tools to achieve personal, academic and career goals

Students will experience personal coaching equivalent to that received by thousands of executives around the world as a part of their profession development. Development in leadership roles will be a specific point of focus for the class.

Students will need to complete a FULL 34 StrengthsQuest report from Gallup by the third week of the semester (approximate cost $85).

This course is taught by Dr. Mike Finnegan, Staley School of Leadership Studies, and Dr. Glenn Phelps, Certified Gallup Strength Coach
