Alma Mater

by H.W. Jones, class of 1888

*I know a spot that I love full well,
'Tis not in forest nor yet in dell;
Ever it holds me with magic spell,
I think of thee, Alma Mater.*

*K-S-U, we'll carry thy banner high.
K-S-U, long, long may thy colors fly.
Loyal to thee, thy children will swell the cry.
Hail, Hail, Hail, Alma Mater.*

About Kansas State University

Founded in 1863 as the nation's first operational land-grant university, Kansas State University's mission is to foster excellent teaching, research and service that develop a highly skilled and educated citizenry necessary to advancing the well-being of Kansas, the nation and the international community. K-State embraces diversity and inclusion, encourages engagement and is committed to the discovery of knowledge, the education of undergraduate and graduate students, and improvement in the quality of life and standard of living of those we serve.

K-State has campuses in Manhattan, Olathe and Salina — home of the Aerospace and Technology Campus — as well as K-State Online, which serves distance education students around the world. When it comes to academics, K-State's majors and degree programs offer pathways to hundreds of career options that can be tailored to individual goals and dream careers. Interest areas offered through K-State's nine colleges and Graduate School include agriculture, food and natural resources; architecture, art and design; aviation; business; communications, media and marketing; computer science and information technology; education and leadership; engineering and construction; government, law and social sciences; health professions; hospitality and tourism; human and social services; humanities, culture and society; science and mathematics; veterinary medicine; and visual and performing arts.

Forbes magazine, U.S. News and World Report and the Princeton Review all recognize K-State as one of the best universities in the nation, which is backed by the strong support K-State receives from its alumni and friends. With more than 200,000 alumni, the K-State Alumni Association ranks No. 1 in the Big 12 Conference for the percentage of graduates who are association members. In 2020, the KSU Foundation wrapped up the highly successful Innovation and Inspiration Campaign, raising $1.6 billion for K-State.

Called the "Silicon Valley for biodefense" because of its leadership in food safety and security and agrodefense, K-State is home to four Feed the Future Innovation Labs, an initiative by the U.S. Agency for International Development to increase food production in nations with limited resources. The university also is home to the Biosecurity Research Institute, a biosafety level-3 facility devoted to comprehensive infectious disease research and training. The National Bio and Agro-Defense Facility, the nation's premier animal disease research facility, is scheduled for completion in 2022 and is adjacent to the Manhattan campus.

Total research efforts at Kansas State University have led to more than 335 patents to date. The university has more than 90 research centers, including the 8,600-acre Konza Prairie Biological Station and the Johnson Cancer Research Center. Our distinguished faculty members are tackling such issues as feeding a hungry world expected to reach 50 billion in population by 2050, climate change, cybersecurity, sustainable energy, urban revitalization and more — and they often involve undergraduate students in their work. K-State Research and Extension also serves the citizens of Kansas in a variety of ways, with personnel, offices, research centers, programs and more throughout the state.

About Our Ceremonies

University mace

The Kansas State University mace made its debut in September 2009 at the inauguration of Kirk H. Schulz as the university's 13th president. A mace is a decorative symbol of office and typically carried at the front of academic processions. Designed by Tom Boley, a 1970 K-State alumnus, the mace is made from a purple wood called purpleheart and a light-colored maple.

Academic dress

The history of academic dress dates to medieval European universities of the 12th century. Universities in the U.S. have standardized academic dress so its features are common and uniform throughout the country.

The gown — At K-State, gowns are black and typically made of synthetic material or worsted wool. The pattern varies with the degree held: open sleeves for the bachelor's degree; long, closed sleeves with slits for the hands for the master's degree; and round, bell sleeves for the doctoral degree.

The hood — Students receiving graduate degrees wear hoods. The master's hood is shorter than the doctoral hood and lacks the panels of the doctoral hood. Hoods are lined with the colors of the university; K-State's lining is purple with two inverted chevrons. The binding or edging of the hood is the color pertaining to the subject of the degree.

The caps — All bachelor's and master's degree candidates wear a black mortarboard. Doctoral students may wear a mortarboard or a soft velvet tam with either six or eight sides. The tams can be dark blue or black for Doctor of Philosophy candidates, and light blue for Doctor of Education candidates. Doctor of Veterinary Medicine candidates wear a black mortarboard. Tassel color for all degree candidates depends on the degree and/or degree field.

Speaker

David Delker

David Delker earned an associate degree in electronic engineering technology from Kansas Technical Institute, which is now K-State Salina, in 1973. After working several years as an electronic engineering technician in industry, he earned a bachelor's degree in technical education and a master's degree in electrical engineering at Oklahoma State University.

Delker joined the Kansas Technical Institute as an assistant professor in 1979 and served on the faculty until 1983 when he accepted a position at the Kansas State University College of Engineering in Manhattan. He taught on the Manhattan campus until 1993 when he returned to the Salina campus after it merged with K-State. Delker led the electronic engineering technology program from 1993 until 1998 when he became department head of engineering technology. He served in that position until 2004 when he became associate dean of academics for the campus. He retired as associate dean and professor emeritus in 2014.

The Kansas Technical Institute recognized Delker for his teaching by naming him the first recipient of the Marchbanks Award for Teaching Excellence in 1983. He served his profession as a program evaluator for the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology and evaluated 18 electronic and computer engineering technology programs across the country. Throughout his career, he established a strong applied research and service record. He worked as a consultant in electronic instrumentation and digital systems development with several companies, particularly in fluid power and agricultural system design.

Delker's service to the university is extensive and includes serving on the K-State Faculty Senate, Academic Affairs Committee, the Committee on Academic Policies and Procedures, and the General Education Task Force. For several years he chaired the 40-person committee of academic and administrative stakeholders that designed and implemented the K-State student information system, KSIS. He chaired the team that developed the curriculum management system for the university and led student advising, faculty development and assessment programs for the K-State Salina campus.

For his distinguished career, the K-Salina Aerospace and Technology Campus selected Delker as its 2022 Alumni Fellow.

Delker and his wife, Shawn, are active volunteers in the 4-H program in Saline County and statewide. They both continue to teach and mentor students, although now the academic subjects include — in addition to electronics — woodworking, photography and visual art. The Delkers are parents of three K-State graduates: Ryan in 2001, Collin in 2003 and Kelsey in 2009.

Commerce Bank and W.T. Kemper Foundation Distinguished Graduate Faculty Award

Caterina Scoglio

As an internationally recognized expert in the field of network science and contact-network models for epidemic spreading, Caterina Scoglio's work has been transformational. Her research team developed the generalized epidemic mean field modeling software, which has been widely adopted by other researchers and applied to modeling of many infectious diseases. Scoglio and her research group are often sought out for research proposals in response to new epidemics. Her team's work in the last year has been particularly significant as the team produced accurate predictions of the spread of COVID-19 in Wuhan City, China, and of the Uganda cases of Ebola in 2019.

Scoglio's research has been supported by more than $11 million in funding. She has over 100 journal publications, 73 conference presentations and has given over 35 invited talks.

In addition to her outstanding accomplishments in research, Scoglio has made important contributions to graduate education at K-State. She has mentored 23 master's students and 18 doctoral students who have been successful in both academia and industry careers in the U.S. and abroad. Scoglio's strong mentoring is also evidenced by many of her students being selected for outstanding graduate student awards in the electrical and computer engineering department.

Scoglio earned her doctorate in engineering from the University of Rome. She joined K-State's electrical and computer engineering department in 2005. Her work has been recognized with several awards from K-State, including the Engineering Distinguished Researcher Award, the Frankenhoff Outstanding Research Award, Steve Hsu Keystone research faculty scholar, Professorial Performance Award and the Research Proposal Teamwork Award.

An internationally recognized scholar, Barbara Valent has made high-impact contributions to understanding plant diseases that threaten global food security. She has spent decades studying fungal diseases — blasts — in rice and wheat, which threaten crops in Kansas and worldwide. Valent's research team pioneered microscopic techniques for visualizing molecular plant-microbe interactions in real time. Her work has been influential and adapted by peers to study other plant-pathogen interactions.

Barbara Valent

Successful in securing over $14 million in grant funding as principal or co-principal investigator, Valent has authored more than 130 peer-reviewed articles with 19,700-plus citations. Much of Valent's work has been published in elite and highly interdisciplinary journals. For her work published in The Plant Cell, she was named top author by the American Society of Plant Biologists.

Valent's contributions to graduate education at K-State include serving as chair of the interdepartmental genetics program since 2004. In this role, she has provided administrative and academic leadership and worked to establish the Genetics Doctoral Fellowship Program. Valent guides many students in the program and has directly advised seven graduate students. In 2010, her support and mentorship were recognized by students in the plant pathology department with their Mentor Award.

After joining K-State's plant pathology department in 2001, Valent earned K-State's highest academic ranking of university distinguished professor in 2002. National recognition for her work includes being recognized as a fellow of the American Phytopathological Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. She received a Lifetime Achievement Award in Rice Blast Research in 2019 and was elected to the National Academy of Sciences in 2020. Valent earned her doctorate in biochemistry from the University of Colorado.

Michael Dryden

Dryden earned a bachelor's degree in 1982 and a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine in 1984, both from K-State. He spent a couple years in private practice before going on to earn a master's degree in 1988 and a doctorate in 1990, both from Purdue University. It was while he was a graduate student at Purdue that the veterinary students started calling him "Dr. Flea," a nickname that stuck throughout his career.

Dryden joined the College of Veterinary Medicine faculty in 1990 as an assistant professor of veterinary parasitology in the diagnostic medicine and pathobiology department. He was promoted to full professor in 1999 and in 2011 he received the designation of university distinguished professor, the university's highest faculty ranking.

The professor's research program was involved in two primary areas: the biology and control of fleas and ticks infesting dogs and cats, and the diagnosis and control of gastrointestinal parasites of dogs and cats. Dryden has published more

Among Kansas State University's most distinguished faculty members, Michael Dryden is an internationally recognized expert on fleas and ticks.

A native Kansan, Dryden was born in Osborne and grew up on a farm northwest of Cawker City.

He has lectured in 22 countries, presenting more than 1,000 invited seminars on clinical veterinary parasitology at local, regional, national and international meetings. His work brought him several national and international honors, including being named a charter diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Microbiologists in 2011; Veterinarian of the Year, presented at the 56th annual Show Dogs of the Year Awards at the Westminster Dog Show; the American Association of Veterinary Parasitologists Distinguished Parasitologist of the Year; and the American Association of Veterinary Microbiologists Distinguished Microbiologist of the Year. He also received the Pfizer Award for Research Excellence, the K-State Distinguished Service Award from the Kansas Veterinary Medical Association, a Recognition Award in Urban Entomology from the northcentral branch of the Entomological Society of America and an Excellence in Teaching Award from the American College of Veterinary Dermatology.

Speaker

Chris Sorensen

Chris Sorensen is the Cortelyou-Rust university distinguished professor and university teaching scholar in the physics department and adjunct faculty member in the chemistry department at Kansas State University. Sorensen has served at K-State his entire career.

A highly honored professor and researcher at all levels, Sorensen was named the Carnegie Foundation and Council for the Advancement and Support of Education U.S. Professor of the Year for doctoral and research universities in 2007. He also is a fellow of the American Physical Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sorensen's academic innovations include conceiving, developing and teaching the new studio instruction method used in the large sophomore-level Engineering Physics course at K-State. He also created studios for the Descriptive Astronomy and Optics courses. Sorensen integrated reading of the great scientists into the lowest-level non-major physics course. He also co-conceived, developed and was the primary instructor for EXCITE, a summer workshop for female teens that gives them hands-on mechanical skills.

Active in outreach activities both small and large, he has been invited lecturer on Scientific American's Bright Horizons cruise, conducted astronomy viewing nights with the Flint Hills Discovery Center and UFM Community Learning Center, and led the campus community and the surrounding area in observing the Great American Eclipse of 2017, offering education and information about the event. Sorensen also gives lectures to make science popular at junior and senior high schools throughout the state and has worked with underadvantaged youths through the American Chemistry Society's project SEED for 18 years. He has mentored 21 master's, 23 doctoral and 13 postdoctoral students.

A prolific scientist, Sorensen's research concerns graphene and materials synthesis, light scattering, gelation, and aerosol and colloidal particulate systems. He is the author of more than 320 papers that have been cited over 20,000 times and one book. He holds seven patents and has five patents pending. Sorensen is the primary inventor for the startup company HydroGraph Clean Power Inc. that will produce graphene and hydrogen in a facility in east Manhattan.

Sorensen has given more than 150 invited lectures in the U.S. and abroad, including several named lectures. A past president of the American Association for Aerosol Research, he received the association's David Sinclair Award for his work on aerosol fractal aggregates and light scattering. His other honors include the Olin Petefish Award in Basic Science from the Higuchi-KU Endowment Fund and the Outstanding Publication Award from the journal Aerosol Science and Technology

Born and raised in Omaha, Nebraska, Sorensen graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1969 where he was Phi Beta Kappa and a Woodrow Wilson fellow. He was then promptly drafted into the U.S. Army, served a tour of duty in Vietnam in military intelligence and then went to the University of Colorado where he earned a doctorate in physics in 1976. In 2008 he was named a Norlin Distinguished Graduate of that university.

Brittany Williams

a key influencer and respected industry thought leader on the future of integrated design and construction delivery.

After graduating from Kansas State University with a Bachelor of Architecture, Williams spent the next 10 years in the architecture field, building a diverse project portfolio that includes educational facilities, wastewater treatment facilities and affordable housing projects. She then made a career pivot and

Brittany Williams, whose notable industry recognitions include the San Francisco Business Times' 40 Under 40 list for 2022, Building Design+Construction's 40 Under 40 list for 2021 and ENR California & Northwest's Top Young Professionals for 2021, has solidified herself as joined Webcor as a design manager in August 2019. Just a year later, she was promoted to senior design manager of strategic innovation, reflecting her unique focus on bridging the gap between design and construction and creating innovative strategies for approaching design partners. This highly specialized role has empowered her to effect change in the construction/design industry by challenging the status quo and its current methodology.

With a lifelong passion for diversity, equity and inclusion, Williams serves on several of Webcor's steering committees for diversity, equity and inclusion, which aim to support women's efforts and achievements for professional growth and support the growth and development of Black employees. She regularly speaks about her own life experiences, including being a minority in the design/construction field and how it has impacted her career journey in an effort to build a more diverse workforce in the profession she loves so much.

Speaker

Brian Jordan

Beloit native Brian Jordan serves as the executive director for the Kansas Association of School Boards. Along with serving as the College of Education's commencement speaker, Jordan also is this year's recipient of the prestigious Dan and Cheryl Yunk Award for Excellence in Educational Administration.

The Yunks were both exemplary teachers and administrators throughout their careers in the Manhattan-Ogden school system. Established in their honor, this award recognizes the importance of educational administrators in establishing environments that promote student learning.

In his 21 years in education, Jordan has served as a teacher, principal and assistant superintendent before becoming the executive director for the Kansas Association of School Boards. He earned his bachelor's degree in education at Kansas State University, a master's in education administration at Emporia State University and his doctorate in education leadership at K-State. His dissertation focused on school funding and accreditation.

Jordan has worked with schools across Kansas, helping train thousands of school board members on effective leadership, planning and operations. He is frequently called upon by districts to help in transitions, such as hiring a new superintendent or bringing on new board members, and has worked closely with leaders at the Kansas State Department of Education. Jordan also had a major hand in two leadership programs within the Kansas Association of School Boards: Leadership for Tomorrow and Business Operations Leadership Development.

Jordan uses his passion for school finance and leadership to work with educators and leaders every day to benefit student success.

Oath of Education

I hereby pledge my dedication to the profession of teaching. I accept the obligations and the challenges of guiding students to knowledge, always showing them care and concern. I will encourage respect for all people, and will cultivate the disciplined, yet free minds necessary for a democratic way of life.

I promise to champion policies which promote quality in teaching and learning. I will provide everyone engaged in education the opportunity to achieve their own level of excellence. I will strive to become a knowledgeable, ethical, caring decision maker and emulate these qualities which I pledge to foster. I recognize that at times my endeavors may prove discouraging. Nonetheless, I remain faithful to the belief that my actions in the pursuit of these goals make me worthy of my profession, and make my profession worthy of a free people.

Speaker

Michael Torrey

As principal and founder of Michael Torrey Associates, Michael Torrey provides overall firm guidance and management, fosters relationships with influential leaders in Congress and the administration, leads client development efforts and handles issues management for clients.

A Kansas native, Torrey has more than 25 years of experience in legislative and regulatory policy development, fiscal management, issue analysis, lobbying strategy, communications and association management. He specializes in food, agriculture, risk management and financial services. He has served as advisor to presidential candidate and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, an advisor to Sens. Nancy Landon Kassebaum and Sheila Frahm, deputy chief of staff at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, special assistant at the Commodity

Future Trading Commission, and has served in numerous roles for state and national trade associations, including the International Dairy Foods Association and Kansas Grain and Feed Association/Kansas Fertilizer and Chemical Association.

Torrey leveraged his knowledge of the food and agriculture sectors and strong bipartisan relationships throughout Capitol Hill, the White House and government agencies to found Michael Torrey Associates in 2005. Under Torrey's leadership, the firm serves many major food, agriculture and financial clients, and provides association management services for the Crop Insurance and Reinsurance Bureau.

Torrey was raised on a diversified farming operation. He graduated from Kansas State University in 1986 with a Bachelor of Science in agricultural education and, in 2009, was named Outstanding Young Ag Alumnus. He lives in Arlington, Virginia, with his wife and daughter.

Speaker

Kelli Alldredge

After graduating, Alldredge enjoyed the opportunity to work as a cheerleader for the Kansas City Chiefs. Her love of sports, health and helping people combined to lead her into a career in personal training. She began with The Firm Athletic Club and continues her affiliation with Will Shields' 68 Inside Sports.

After graduating, Alldredge enjoyed the opportunity to work as a cheerleader for the Kansas City Chiefs. Her love of sports, health and helping people combined to lead her into a career in personal training. She began with The Firm Athletic Club and continues her affiliation with Will Shields' 68 Inside Sports.

Kelli Alldredge is a lifelong learner whose path began as a student at Kansas State University where she earned a Bachelor of Science in kinesiology with an emphasis on health promotion. During her time at K-State, Alldredge, then Kelli Sweeney, was active in campus life, including in the Kinesiology Student

A competitive tennis player, Alldredge was a national champion in world team tennis in 2013. She was the Missouri Valley Heart of America Adult Player of the Year in 2015. No longer actively competing in tennis, she now is a devoted pickleball player.

Her current endeavor as senior vice president of engagement for the rapidly growing Chicken N Pickle franchise combines her love of athletics, people, communication and competition. A member of the company's senior management team, Alldredge's responsibilities include oversight of community relations, public relations/social media, pickleball, employee engagement and national growth. The company now has six locations and more than 1,500 employees, with plans to open four additional locations by early 2023.

Outside of work, Alldredge dedicates her time to organizations she is passionate about. She is co-founder of Jamie's Wish Foundation and the Chicken N Pickle Foundation, and serves on the board of directors for Cristo Rey High School and the K-State Kinesiology Advisory Board. She and her husband, Andrew Alldredge, have three children.

environmentally friendly for the oil and gas, power and utility sectors. Excellence is one of only a handful of women-led engineering firms working in the construction, oil and gas and utility-based industries.

Hays began her career as a project/field engineer with Williams Pipeline in Tulsa after graduation and later specialized in electrical, controls and automation during the beginning years of the automation push. Hays is a board-certified professional engineer licensed in 38 states and maintains model law status with the National Council of Professional Engineers.

Deyona "Dee" Hays is the current CEO and founder of Excellence Engineering, a national company based in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Excellence is one of America's premier engineering firms focusing on solutions for the energy sector. Her company develops and designs facilities that are

After 10 years, Hays began her entrepreneurial journey by launching her first company, MYCO Controls, which engineered, built and installed control systems for all kinds of industrial facilities. Hays has gone on to start five successful businesses, of which three have sold and the other two are still operational.

Hays earned her bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Kansas State University in 1989 and graduated in 2017 from Harvard Business School through its owner/president management leadership program.

Hays serves on the Carl R. Ice College of Engineering advisory council and as a commissioner for the Oklahoma Universal Building Codes Commission. She serves on a variety of nonprofit boards benefiting STEM efforts, women in the workplace and entrepreneurship. She has received many distinctions recognizing her leadership skills as a CEO and of a woman-owned business.

Alumni membership

All colleges have provided graduates with a one-year membership to the K-State Alumni Association. Graduates also will receive a gift from the alumni association in recognition of their graduation. K-Staters are some of the most loyal alumni in the country, and we are excited to welcome you into a new relationship with your alma mater. The K-State Alumni Association is your link for life to K-State. Learn more and stay connected by visiting K-State.com.
