

Teaching Opportunity for Graduate Certificate Earners in Women's Studies

The Women's Studies Department seeks applicants to teach WOMST 105: Introduction to Women's Studies in 2014-15. We currently have THREE available sections. These may be assigned individually to different instructors, or might be combined. Please indicate in your materials what your preference or requirement would be (for 1, 2, or 3 sections).

For those currently holding a GTA-ship: Teaching one of these sections would replace one of the sections of your GTA-ship in your home department. (So your overall teaching load, pay, and tuition benefits will not change.)

To be considered, applicants must have completed or be officially enrolled in the graduate certificate program in Women's Studies.

(Online enrollment at <http://www.k-state.edu/womst/graduate/current.html>)

If you would like to be considered, please submit:

- 1) a letter of interest that outlines your background in Women's Studies and that indicates which times you could teach from the list below
- 2) a vita or resume
- 3) a statement of teaching philosophy
- 4) the names of and contact information for three references
- 5) student evaluations of your teaching, if available
