10 am – 3 pm
IGP Conference Center
1980 Kimball Avenue
Manhattan, KS, 66506

Call for Papers

Hosted by the History Graduate Student Organization at Kansas State University. This conference serves as an opportunity for both graduate and upper-level undergraduate history students from the Flint Hills region and beyond to gain valuable experience presenting their original research in a friendly, low-pressure environment while still meeting rigorous academic standards.

- The theme of this year’s conference will be “2020 Vision: Writing Tomorrow’s History Today.” Applicants are encouraged to submit proposals for presentations regarding scholarly work that makes the best use of modern research and presentation techniques, or research on a historical topic that may shed light on current events. Students in non-history fields may also apply if their work is relevant to the conference theme. Panels are encouraged though individual papers will also be accepted.
- Deadline: March 15, 2020
- Submit a 250 word [maximum] abstract, curriculum vitae, and contact information to:

  Bradley Galka
  HGSO President
  flinthillshistconf@gmail.com

  Accepted applicants must submit their completed projects no later than April 1, 2020.

The keynote speaker will be Dr. Bonnie Lynn-Sherow, Associate Professor of American History at Kansas State University. Dr. Lynn-Sherow is a well-regarded expert on cutting-edge research and presentation methods, and will be speaking on the importance of utilizing new and developing technologies in scholars’ academic work.
