

TAYA SEMON- MODERN LANGUAGES AMBASSADOR

I started studying French my freshman year of high school because I couldn't roll my Rs and that led me to becoming a Rotary exchange student in France for 10 months during my junior year. There I grew immensely as a person and met lifelong friends and family that I miss dearly. Throughout the past two years I've had the chance to travel to a total of 11 countries, and each new place and person offers even more. What I love most about studying languages is that there is never an end to what I can learn; there will always be more places to visit, people to meet, and vocal to learn. The continuing of my education and expansion of knowledge is what pulls me towards a career in education. Inspiring others, hearing their stories, and perhaps affecting their entire future, as my language teachers did me, is what pushes me. I do what I do not only for myself, but for my little sisters and the people I meet along the way, so they know you can do whatever you set your mind to and there is not one specific path your life has to take.
