Gayle Doll to direct Center on Aging

Gayle Doll, who received a master’s degree in health administration from the technical college and then completed a bachelor’s degree in technology management, has been named director of the Center on Aging. Doll previously served as the center’s interim director and will continue to direct the center during the transition.

Doll will coordinate and develop educational and training programs for staff, students and the public; and, as director, she will serve as the local university lead for the Kansas 2+2 agreements in Manhattan.

“My interest started a long time ago,” Doll said. “I’ve had a strong educational foundation for my future and what I’ll do after my military career is over.”

Always on the go, the supervisor positions at the original Country Stampede stood with the fire department. “It was a full-time job and we had to use the ‘jaws of life’ to get some people out. Working to keep the kids safe and get them to safety was really rewarding. It just made me feel good and I hope to keep what I do now in technology and business and technology and business is a good career.”

K-State signed two 2+2 agreements with Manhattan Area Technical College in information and network technology and bachelor’s degree in technology management. The bachelor’s programs are offered through the College of Human Ecology. The appointment becomes effective June 5.

Learn to explore art with children during a workshop for parents, teachers and home-school providers, “Young Children and the Fine Art Museum,” 10 a.m. Saturday, June 7, in the Book Museum. Children and workshops are for kids ages five and up. Make reservations for the free event by calling 352-7718.

Where leaders learn, continued

Fort Leavenworth students gain higher degrees through K-State

Major Josh Higgins wanted to pursue a master’s degree while attending the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.

Where leaders learn, continued

Leading opportunities

Classifieds

Government

For Kansas State University Faculty and Staff

June 5, 2008 Vol. 30, No. 22

The next issue of K-State’s magazine for Kansas State University faculty and staff, “K-State,” will be published on June 19. Submit items by noon on June 10.

The Kansas State University Staff Council is seeking nominations for the 2008 Staff Council Staff Member of the Year award. The Staff Council is a group of full-time and part-time faculty and staff members who are elected by the staff to serve on the faculty-staff governing body.

Staff Council: 532-4636

Coordinator: Donald Saucier

Where leaders learn, continued

Where leaders learn, continued

opportunities

May 8, 2008

Gary Brown, "Principles and Practice of Behavior Therapy: Differences in Numbered Formats.

Douglas and state- wide Peers presented "Theoretical and Practical Applications of Social Dominance Theory," 8 a.m.-noon, Thursday, May 8, in Student Union.bing.

Gayle Doll, a major who earned a master’s in adult education, attended the Kansas State University College of Business and Industry that had a long history of being well respected.

While at Fort Leavenworth, students at the United States Command and General Staff College are instructed in the tactical and operational aspects of military history and security studies. This is second in size, only four in the United States Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.

Where leaders learn, continued

where leaders learn, continued

June 10

June 12

Music Symposium

In the musical perfor-

tions for music students with disabilities,

the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

June 16-19

Music Symposium

In the musical perfor-

tions for music students with disabilities,

the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

June 10

Waste workshop

Women’s Waste Workshop will introduce attendees to various activities for univer-

ity. For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

June 12

Ladies night

Women’s Waste Workshop will introduce attendees to various activities for univer-

ity. For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

Jones honored for airline air quality work

K-State representatives at the signing included Dennis Kuhlman, associate dean of adult education; and David Stewart, assistant dean of continuing education, security studies.

By the time 2003, the Center on Aging in Manhattan had a long history of being well respected.

Gayle Doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan.

James Jones, executive dean for research and graduate program director, received a master’s degree in environmental health and safety management from the University of New Mexico in 1982. Jones is director of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.

Where leaders learn, continued

Where leaders learn, continued

opportunities

May 8, 2008

Gary Brown, "Principles and Practice of Behavior Therapy: Differences in Numbered Formats.

Douglas and state- wide Peers presented "Theoretical and Practical Applications of Social Dominance Theory," 8 a.m.-noon, Thursday, May 8, in Student Union.bing.

Gayle Doll, a major who earned a master’s in adult education, attended the Kansas State University College of Business and Industry that had a long history of being well respected.

While at Fort Leavenworth, students at the United States Command and General Staff College are instructed in the tactical and operational aspects of military history and security studies. This is second in size, only four in the United States Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.

Where leaders learn, continued

where leaders learn, continued

June 10

Waste workshop

Women’s Waste Workshop will introduce attendees to various activities for univer-

ity. For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

June 12

Ladies night

Women’s Waste Workshop will introduce attendees to various activities for univer-

ity. For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education conference registration phone 785-532-604;

Jones honored for airline air quality work

K-State representatives at the signing included Dennis Kuhlman, associate dean of adult education; and David Stewart, assistant dean of continuing education, security studies.

By the time 2003, the Center on Aging in Manhattan had a long history of being well respected.

Gayle Doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan. doll has been named director of the Center on Aging in Manhattan.

James Jones, executive dean for research and graduate program director, received a master’s degree in environmental health and safety management from the University of New Mexico in 1982. Jones is director of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.

Where leaders learn, continued

Where leaders learn, continued

opportunities

May 8, 2008

Gary Brown, "Principles and Practice of Behavior Therapy: Differences in Numbered Formats.

Douglas and state- wide Peers presented "Theoretical and Practical Applications of Social Dominance Theory," 8 a.m.-noon, Thursday, May 8, in Student Union.bing.

Gayle Doll, a major who earned a master’s in adult education, attended the Kansas State University College of Business and Industry that had a long history of being well respected.

While at Fort Leavenworth, students at the United States Command and General Staff College are instructed in the tactical and operational aspects of military history and security studies. This is second in size, only four in the United States Command and General Staff College. The popular master’s degree in adult education “has a direct application to the military,” Higgins said.
Sustainable wardrobes
Web site to offer insight to fabric of people’s lives

Pablo’s clothing, home furnishings, and other products draw their materials from a wide range of sources. "Their value is largely determined by the resources and processes used to make those items, and by add-on sustainability and environmental benefits to the overall product," she said. "It’s our job to make sure our information is the best and most accurate, and to make sustainability a visible part of the product’s identity."

This spring, Pablo, a clothing, home goods, and textile company, started selling its wares in a new online store. The site, sustainablewardrobes.com, allows customers to choose from a variety of sustainable clothing, home goods, and textiles. "We want to help people see sustainability as a part of their lives," she said.

The site was designed by Pablo’s marketing team with the help of a sustainability consultant. "We want to help the public think about sustainability in a more tangible way," she said. "We want to make sustainability a part of their lives and to think of sustainability as their lifestyle." The site features a selection of sustainable clothing and home goods, as well as information about the sustainability practices of the companies and designers featured on the site.

"We want to make the transition to sustainability," she said. "For researchers and academics, the site will offer news and updates on the topic of textile marketing and manufacturing. For consumers, the site will serve as a source of information and ideas about how to incorporate sustainability into their daily lives."

Those interested in sustainability, she said, can visit the site at sustainablewardrobes.com. For more information, please contact Pablo’s sustainability department at sustainability@pablo.com

Accounting
Lori A. Goetsch presented "Formal Academic Disciplinary Societies and Their Role in Accounting Profession" at the 2008 American Accounting Association Annual Meeting. Goetsch’s presentation focused on the role of academic societies in the accounting profession and the impact of those societies on professional practice. "The role of academic societies in the accounting profession is becoming increasingly important," she said. "These societies provide a valuable resource for members of the profession, and they play a crucial role in shaping the direction of the field."

Goetsch is the dean of libraries at the University of Kansas in Lawrence. She is also a member of the American Library Association’s Council on Library and Information Resources. Goetsch has been involved in the library profession for over 20 years, and she has served in a variety of leadership roles at the national and international levels. She is a member of the Association of College and Research Libraries, the American Library Association, and the Special Libraries Association.

Goetsch received her master’s degree in information studies from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1992 and her doctorate in information studies from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1998. She is a member of the American Society for Information Science and Technology and the Association for the Study of Teachers of Information Studies.

Lori A. Goetsch, dean of libraries, has been elected vice president/ president-elect of the Association of College and Research Libraries (ACRL), the division of the American Library Association (ALA) that represents academic and research libraries. Goetsch will become president-elect after the 2008 ACRL annual meeting in Minneapolis. She will become president in July 2009 for a one-year term.

Goetsch has held a number of positions in the association, including chair of the division’s budget and finance committee, chair of the membership and division management committee, and chair of the membership and division management committee. She has also served on the association’s board of directors.

The selection process was very demanding and involved a large number of people, Goetsch said. "Our ability to recruit and retain talented and dedicated individuals for leadership positions in the association is clearly an issue of critical importance."

Seventy fellows from 33 countries were selected for their leadership potential in government, business, education, media and other professional areas.

Koscheid was a teaching professor in economics at the University of Queensland in Brisbane, Australia. She was a member of the board of governors of the Australian and New Zealand Economic Association and was a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences in Australia and New Zealand. She was a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Policy Modeling and was a Guest Editor of the Research in Economics Journal. She was a member of the Australian Economic Association and the Academy of Social Sciences in Australia and New Zealand.

(continued on back)