Rice holds a master's in soil science and a Ph.D. in soil science.

For creative professional images contact university photographer.
K-State's Rabies Laboratory has a new home in the Manhattan/K-State Interdisciplinary Studies: Heifer Development Conference, April 17, Austin, Tex.

Clinical sciences

Bonnie Schuck presented "Teach the Teacher: Teacher Educator Training for the 21st Century" at the Society for American Association of Veterinary Clinical Educators department conference, April 14, Phoenix, Ariz.

English

Charles Brooks published "Could She Be in Jail?" in the "Visit Our School" column, K-State Student Body Association, April 2-4, New Orleans, La.

Lawrence Reichard presented "DeLillo After 9/11" at the College English Association Annual Conference, March 25-27, Nashville, Tenn.:

Occupational therapy

K-State faculty presented at the All-University Open House, March 25-27, Nashville, Tenn.:

Sump discourses where to place a sign ticker tape for the next softball game, as well as promotion of the student center, and K-State's "flats" in downtown Manhattan. While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

While various groups across campus are planning semester events, Sump said the March 25-27 Open House is her primary focus. "I don't have time for the details; I just think about every detail," she said. "It will never be perfect, but we need to make it better than last year."

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.

When it comes to events, K-State's Loleta Sump is all about the details.

So, for K-State's April 6 University Open House, and other displays and events on campus, why are there so many pairs of purple ribbon-colored shovels. Sump's not sure there is a complete description of her job.