

For six years every fall, Movies on the Grass (MOG) has offered audiences free outdoor films shown for the first time in Manhattan, such as King Corn, Oil on Ice, Who Killed the Electric Car?, and The Tiger Next Door. Organized by campus and community partners, Movies on the Grass now owns its own outdoor screening equipment and is working with local and regional groups to offer unique community viewing experiences. Watch trailers to our 2011 fall season online from www.k-state.edu/moviesonthegrass:

8/28 Trouble the Waters
9/11 Houston, We Have A Problem
9/18 A Small Gift
9/25 Elephant In The Living Room

Over 5,800 students, faculty, and citizens have participated in MOG film events. Will you share our goal of giving more independent films an audience, in Manhattan and beyond? In return, we will be happy to promote your business or organization by the means listed below. Just choose a support option and write a check payable to K-State Libraries, attn. Movies on the Grass. Then bring your friends, a lawn chair, and enjoy the shows. On behalf of the Movies on the Grass Steering Committee, we thank you!
