

Philosophy of Sex and Love

PHILO332

We spend much of our time in search of sex and love. But what is love, exactly? Does love require traditional conventions like marriage and monogamy? What are the ethics of sexual relationships? How have our traditional conceptions of love and sex been problematically gendered? Our exploration aims to enrich our understanding of these ideas and to reflect on how our own attitudes towards sex and love shape our values and choices.