

Introduction to Philosophy

PHILO 100

This course begins with a section on the meaning of life, then takes up the nature of moral truth, and finally closes by considering the intersection of liberty and social justice. Students with an interest in what it all means will find the course engaging, and those wanting a deeper understanding of political debates will find this course especially useful. Lessons are drawn from such thinkers as the speaker of Ecclesiastes, John Locke, Adam Smith, and MLK Jr.

Dr. Glymour · Willard 114 · TTH 2:30-3:45 · Spring 2022