Financial well-being

Powercat Financial provides K-State students with free financial education to support their current and future financial well-being. Trained peer financial counselors provide individual sessions—in person and online—as well as educational workshops for student groups.

Planning topics

Meet with a peer financial counselor and be prepared for the costs and available resources at K-State.

- Set long- and short-term financial goals and create a plan to meet them.
- Organize and understand your finances.
- Explore and understand the importance and use of credit.
- Analyze your options for student loan repayment.
- Review your job offer and employee benefits.
- Avoid identity theft.

Students can schedule a peer financial counseling session through Navigate.

Who we are

Our staff includes undergraduate and graduate students as well as professional staff. We draw from numerous fields and several colleges. When we say "peer," we mean it. You can find counselor profiles on our website.
