Civil wars, terrorism, human rights, and military intervention - there is no doubt that the issues facing our world today are extensive and complex. In the Security Studies program, students explore these challenges in a uniquely diverse environment, where soldiers from Fort Leavenworth's Command and General Staff College and civilians have the opportunity to learn from each other.

Study under an award-winning faculty with expertise ranging from insurgency, human rights, military alliances, and security issues in Africa, East Asia and the Middle East. Graduates will obtain a strong academic foundation that prepares them for national or international work in the field or in the classroom.
