

AMETH 351 ZA: Af Am Perspectives: Black Women's Health and Joy

Dr. Omni

Online Course: 3/24/25-5/26/25

What's missing from the public health narrative regarding health disparities that disproportionately impact Black women? The wholeness of Black women's stories! In this class, students will hear real-world stories from Black women living with joy while living with hypertension, diabetes, and obesity. Each story will be enhanced with scholarly and popular sources. Join Dr. Omni as she helps the next generation of scholars transform the deficit narrative!

This course fulfills the “Human Diversity in the U.S.” and “Historical Perspectives” K-State 8 requirements. It is also an elective for the Integrated Health Studies secondary major, the DEIB in Business certificate, and the Intercultural Competence Certificate
